Things to Remember about Mental Health & Substance Use Disorders

They are Real. Mental illnesses and addictions are just as real and valid as physical illnesses.

It's Not a Personal Weakness. Mental illnesses and addictions, have been determined as brain disorders.

Everyone is Different. Each case is unique, even among the same mental diagnosis or drug; everyone experiences it differently and can develop addictions at different points.

You Can Help Your Family Member or Friend. It is critical for their recovery, that you give them compassion, respect, understanding, encouragement, and support.

You Are Not Alone. 1 in 4 Americans lives with a mental illness. Over 20 million people nationwide suffer from substance use disorder (Source: Centers for Behavioral Health Statistics and Quality).

You Can Fight Stigma. Spread awareness, share your story with others and learn more.
